PLYMOUTH GRAND VOYAGER. THE

How about the flashlight? Or Dad's sunglasses? One thing you'll have no trouble finding in the all-new Plymouth Grand Voyager is storage space. More storage bins, cubbyholes, drawers, pockets and just plain old places to hide things away than ever before. Lift up the rear armrests, for example, and you'll find two huge storage bins. Tucked neatly beneath the front passenger seat is an available drawer with its own security lock. (By the way, that's where you'll find the map of Colorado.) Also available is an overhead console with a place for those sunglasses as well as the garage door opener. There's a center console with a slide-away coin holder, cubby-hole and a compartment for storing stuff like CDs and cassettes. You'll find (eventually) well over a dozen storage spaces—and that doesn't even include the glove box. Not to mention Grand Voyager's cup holders.

The front ones, for instance, hold everything—from a four-ounce baby bottle to a full one-liter jug; they even hold juice boxes and coffee mugs. And should you have to hold something a bit bigger than a pacifier, well, that's where our new Easy Out Roller Seats™ come in. Or, should we say, come out; these industry-exclusive bench seats now glide on nylon wheels, making them a cinch to move and roll away. All of which says nothing of the safety features hidden within Grand Voyager, like dual air bags,† four-wheel anti-lock brakes and available integrated child safety seats. Simply put, the new Grand Voyager is better than ever—redesigned around the needs of people. You'll appreciate the convenience of our new driver's side sliding door—the only one of its kind available today. You'll also appreciate how easy Grand Voyager's sliding doors are to slide, now that they're on inclined tracks. We even made the exterior door handles with an extra degree of thoughtfulness—they're easy to grasp and operate even with a gloved hand. And while you're trying

NEWS FROM AROUND THE WORLD OF DISNEY

Great Family Films

SUMMER FUN AT THE MOVIES

SUMMER ENDS—AND AUTUMN begins—with a trio of great family films. The second half of July brings Operation Dumbo Drop to a theatre near you. Set in Vietnam in 1968, it's the story of soldiers who accomplish an errand of mercy: finding an elephant for a Montagnard village. Starring in the comedy are four brilliant performers: Ray Liotta, Danny Glover, Denis Leary, and Doug E. Doug.

If you've seen the trailer for Operation Dumbo Drop (one of the hottest of the season), you know there's one scene in this movie that has everyone in America wondering: How the heck did they do that? Well, The Disney Channel has the answer—and so will you when you tune in on August 1 as we present Operation Dumbo Drop: Have Trunk Will Travel. Your host: Doug E. Doug.

On August 4, Walt Disney Pictures presents A Kid in King Arthur's Court. Thomas Ian Nicholas plays the contempo Val pal from Reseda who finds himself summoned to Camelot by none other than Mighty Merlin himself. And Autumn gets a raucous kickoff on September 29 with The Big Green. (Think Mighty Ducks; envision Angels in the Outfield.) It's the tale of a downtrodden Texas town, a hapless sheriff, and a beautiful exchange teacher from Germany who enrolls her students in a local soccer league. The Big Green stars Steven Guttenberg and Olivia D'Abo.

A NEW ADVENTURE WITH WINNIE THE POOH

CLICK ON THE HONEY POT at Pooh's feet and angry bees swarm to torment that bear of little brain. In another scene, a clickable brings brightly colored birds to Pooh's window, where they sing.

Welcome to Disney's Animated StoryBook: Winnie the Pooh and the Honey Tree. The second in Disney's acclaimed Animated StoryBook series, Winnie the Pooh and the Honey Tree introduces kids to Pooh and his pals in a whole new way. Seventeen story screens bring Pooh's adventures to life, with each page unfolding surprises, including original character voices, word-for-word narration, hundreds of clickables , plus activities and sound effects. The StoryBook comes with an action dictionary and five skill-building games scattered throughout the story. Winnie the Pooh and the Honey Tree is designed for kids ages three to eight—it's due August 31.

A Special Edition of "Archives"

In August, Disney Drive-In presents a special encore of one of our most requested programs—The Scarecrow of Romney Marsh. Below, Disney archivist Dave Smith discusses the film's star.

PATRICK McGOOHAN

One of the most popular characters in Disney history is the mysterious, masked horseman who galloped across American TV screens in 1964—The Scarecrow of Romney Marsh. Portraying the Scarecrow, and his alter ego, the Vicar of Dymchurch (who dons the disguise to try to help his overtaxed parishioners through Robin Hood-like exploits during the reign of King George III), is the well-known actor Patrick McGoohan. Actually born in New York, the Irish actor attended school in England and joined a repertory company as a young man. After appearing in more than 200 plays, McGoohan debuted in films in 1955. He later gained fame for two classic '60s television series: Secret Agent (which appeared in the United Kingdom as Danger Man) and that enigmatic, sci-fi cum existentialist espionage drama The Prisoner. For Disney, McGoohan starred in two theatrical features, the 1963 film The Three Lives of Thomasina and, 22 years later, Baby: Secret of the Lost Legend. Moviegoers this summer also saw McGoohan (who received near-unanimous praise from the critics) turning in a deliciously villainous performance as Edward Longshanks in Mel Gibson's epic, *Braveheart.

Autumn Leaves

EVEN THOSE WHO LOVE SUMMER will admit there's something uniquely exciting about the promise of a new school year. Remember the crisp look of brand new notebooks—free of any doodled art? Freshly-sharpened pencils, lined up like neat soldiers in their plastic, zippered pencil case? And could you forget the fun of new shoes and clothes? After all, doesn't everybody grow two inches every summer?

This Fall, parents facing back-to-school shopping trips with their children may be pleasantly surprised to discover that the season's new fashions are not so oversized—at last!—and that many of the styles are classic, but in deeper, richer colors than before. Shoes are eye-catching, ranging from comfortable moccasins for girls to boys' athletic shoes that look like they're perfect for a quick game of street hockey. But do you ever wonder where all these new styles come from? Our article on this Fall's hot threads takes a look at how three clothing manufacturers determine the style of the season.

And in the spirit of back-to-school, don't miss our story about preparing to fund your children's college education. While the experts say the best time to start planning is at birth (really), we offer some helpful financial advice that includes information on little-known scholarships and financial aid programs to augment your savings.

You'll also find helpful advice on how to insure that your children receive a well-rounded fine arts education. Even in today's tight budget climate, there are proven ways to build community support for these programs. Finally, don't miss our quick-and-easy supper recipe—it makes returning to the Fall routine more bearable.

As August comes to a close, do plan one end-of-the-season special event—a sunset barbecue at the beach, a neighborhood volleyball match at the park, a Sunday afternoon of paddle-boating—to make sure the Summer of '95 is long remembered. However you say goodbye to Summer, happy Fall!

Dress Code: BACK-TO-BASICS FOR FALL

Wonder how clothing styles for kids get chosen every year?

The designers actually go looking at what children and teens are wearing—both locally and internationally.

At San Francisco-based Levi Strauss & Company, for instance, staff conduct extensive research in shopping malls, watching as new trends emerge on the backs of children and teens. According to spokeswoman Jill Lynch, the Levi Strauss staff even recruit kids to let the staff study their closets and talk with them about what they like to wear—and why.

Sometimes trends start overseas, where U.S. designs are often converted to a new look. Lynch says that our blue jeans are receiving a tighter cut and are being dyed hunter green and navy in Europe, with cuffs added for accent. She predicts we'll see that look here this fall.

Most children are what the industry calls "aspirational dressers": they look to older kids for cues about what's in style. Once a new look comes to be accepted by adults and older teens, it typically will trickle down to younger kids a year or so later.

Overall, designers say this Fall's clothes are cut much closer to the body, but retain a relaxed, comfortable fit. Layering remains popular, but with less of an emphasis on grunge; the result is a more pulled-together look. Sloppy is out; today's trend is more classic, with a twist.

of merchandising with The William Carter Company of Atlanta, Georgia, says this year's children's line includes the traditional themes of railroad, sport, and lumberjack for boys and romance, harvest and lumberjill for girls. Ecru, plaid, and thermal fabric (it looks like dyed long underwear) are popular, along with extra-comfy fleece. Textured materials are big. Colors include red, royal blue and green—all accented with black.

Fall styles from OshKosh B'Gosh are similar, featuring clothes right out of the Pacific Northwest, with plaid sport fleece cardigans, corduroy pants and dresses, and matching turtlenecks and blouses for that popular layered look.

Whatever the style, Page says the basic emphasis in kids' and teen clothing never changes: clothes have got to be cute and comfortable.

CAN YOU AFFORD COLLEGE?

Can you guess what experts say it will cost to send a child who is now a baby to college when the time comes? Hang on to your hats: for a privately-supported institution, you'd better plan to spend $250,000 for four years.

So says Bob Pike, who spent 14 years as a university's director of financial aid. Pike is now the president of EDTECH, Inc., a Kearney, Nebraska-based software firm. "Early planning," Pike emphasizes, "is the key."

But when many parents hear these out-of-sight cost estimates they throw up their hands in desperation. How can families hope to accumulate that kind of money while also balancing costs for everything from house and car payments to paying for pre-school, team sports, music lessons?

The complete picture isn't as bad as it seems. According to Pike, about half of all students in post-secondary education receive some form of financial aid: scholarships, work-study programs, even relatively low-interest loans. Many of the awards are not need-based. In other words, you can have significant assets and still qualify—although loans for those without demonstrated need may carry an interest rate of eight to nine percent.

New services are available to help families tap into scholarship opportunities. For instance, National College Services Ltd. manages a centralized cash financial aid resource database that includes more than 150,000 awards available from 4,000 sources. For $30, high school students can complete an application that includes a 42-item questionnaire about their background, interests, grades, test scores, and goals. Within a few weeks the applicants receive a list of potential scholarship sources to pursue.

Barbara Wellman, who runs a similar scholarship source service in Southborough, Massachusetts, says she put herself through college entirely on scholarships and grants. "I spent hundreds of hours in the library, but now you don't have to," says Wellman, who charges $65 for a customized list of potential sources gleaned from an online database.

There are also a range of ways to help build up the capital it will take to send a kid to college:

© GARRY NICHOLS/SIS

- U.S. Savings Bonds: These bonds earn tax-free interest if the bonds are used to pay college or vocational school tuition and fees. The bonds must be in a parent's name and other restrictions apply.
- Zero-coupon bonds: They pay no interest until they reach maturity, but provide a pre-determined amount of money when they mature. Zero-coupon bonds come in several types and are sold through brokerage firms.

• Mutual funds: With mutual funds the investor makes an initial contribution to the fund and commits to making a series of regular investments, often through automatic monthly withdrawals from a checking account. As the student gets closer to college age, most firms will transfer some of the money to a less risky money-market fund or short-term bond fund.

The savings add up over time. Nancy Williams, vice president for marketing for National College Services, says she started a special fund through payroll deductions when her oldest child was six years old. He's now a freshman at the University of Nebraska and she had over $30,000 stowed in that savings plan alone to help foot the bill.

Pike says the biggest mistake parents make isn't related to the type of investment they choose, but the lack of any systematic approach to college savings. "The biggest problem is that parents fail to plan," he says.

MAKING ARTS ED MEANINGFUL

The arts aren't a frill. In fact, their study has been shown to build literacy and develop intuition, reasoning, and imagination. The arts also contribute to students' self-discipline and self-esteem. Some research even suggests that students who study a musical instrument achieve significantly higher SAT scores.

Yet as budgets tighten at many schools across the country, art programs—from school orchestras to music, art, dance, drama, and art history courses—are being shoved to one side or even axed.

According to Kathleen Welling, director of outreach and special programs for the Music Educators National Conference, based in Reston, Virginia, parents have to work within their communities to stimulate interest in and support for arts education.

"People are not accustomed to thinking of arts as part of the core curriculum," says Welling. "But we have research that shows that music makes you smarter. The first step is to stimulate awareness."

Welling says parents should talk with their school faculty, administration, and school board members to highlight the importance of the arts, and then work to help support strong programs that are part of the curriculum.

Parents can also tap into a well-organized national effort that is already working toward building support for the arts. The Music Educators National Conference joined with the National Academy of Well, we may not be able to promise a better report card, but who knows? The best way to school-age brains might be through their lunchboxes.

- 1/2 cup butter or margarine, room temperature
- 3/4 cup light brown sugar, packed
- 1/4 cup granulated sugar
- 1 egg
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/2 cups old-fashioned or quick-rolled oats
- 1 cup chopped pecans
- 1 cup raisins, chopped dates, butter scotch or chocolate morsels

Preheat oven to 325 degrees F.

Beat butter with sugars until light and fluffy. Beat in egg and vanilla.

Combine flour, baking soda, and salt. Add to butter mixture and beat until blended. Stir in oats, then nuts and raisins.

Using 1/3 cup measure, scoop dough onto ungreased baking sheet. Press each portion into a 4-inch round. Bake for 15 to 20 minutes. (Dough will spread as it bakes.)

Makes 10 (5-inch) cookies.

QUICK TRIP PLANNING

Whether you're planning a last-minute, two-hour drive or a major road trip, Microsoft's new Automap Road Atlas 4.0 can help ($39.95 on disk and CD-ROM). It's a computerized road atlas that asks drivers for their starting point, destination, and personal travel preferences, then quickly calculates the best route to any of nearly 150,000 places in the U.S, Canada, and Mexico. It also includes information on more than 300 ski resorts in North America. Even refueling stops and the approximate cost of gas for the trip are noted.

Recording Arts & Sciences, Inc. and the National Association of Music Merchants to form the National Coalition for Music Education, lobbying nationwide for more emphasis on the arts in the schools. They provide a wide range of publications to help parents better understand what a good arts curriculum should include and to learn how to advocate for a high quality program locally. (Call [800] 525-0930 for a catalog).

The coalition has created an advocacy tool kit that includes a video on the need to implement national standards for arts education—including presentations by Charles Osgood and Secretary of Education Richard Riley—and informational brochures.

SCOTT BARROW

Also encouraging arts education is the Young Musicians Foundation, a Beverly Hills-based philanthropic organization committed to encouraging and supporting young musicians with talent and presenting arts events for the greater community.

Edye Rugolo, executive director, says parents should bring their children—even as pre-schoolers—to concerts and expose them to great music. Rugolo remembers the time her grandmother brought her to a community concert when she was growing up in Texas; she was immediately enthralled with the cello and was able to start lessons soon after by borrowing an instrument from the local school. "Families need to bring children to classical concerts so their kids don't think it's nerdy or elitist," Rugolo says. "Once exposed to the arts, people are more willing to support them."

HOT SHOES

Designers say shoes this year are right in line with the general trends for clothes: comfortable, but fun. Hush Puppies offer moccasins with multicolored stitching and aztec-like stones, plus suede hiking boots and more traditional styles, but in funky colors like mauve, Irish mist and gunsmoke. At L.A. Gear, even the tiniest shoes light up, and girls' shoes feature star-shaped motion lights with rhinestones and embroidery. Boys' athletic shoes are taking on a street hockey look, with traditional black and white color schemes, and a Wayne Gretzky signature on the side.

A FAST & EASY SUPPER FOR FOUR

ALISON DUKE

PROBLEM: Huey hasn't finished his homework and Louie left his spelling book at day care. Mom has her mind on a morning meeting and Dad is delayed. Everybody's hungry; all need nourishment for the next day.

SOLUTION: Make "Weeknight Chicken Chili."

EVEN BETTER: Get everyone to help. Assuming there's more than one can opener in the house, let the kids make a contest out of opening cans while you chop and saute the fresh ingredients. The chili will be done in less than 30 minutes—just enough time to toss a salad (or use one of the many salad-in-a-bag mixtures), heat up some tortillas, and set bowls on the table. When Dad cuts loose, he can pick up some frozen yogurt (and the spelling book). Then the kids can finish their homework alongside scoops of yogurt—perhaps sprinkled with some Colossal, Oatmeal Cookie crumbs (see page 10).

RESULT: Another week continues under way.

- 1 (14 1/2-ounce) can chicken broth
- 1 (18-ounce) can tomatillos, drained and chopped
- 1 (7-ounce) can diced green chiles
- 1/2 teaspoon dried, crumbled oregano
- 1/2 teaspoon ground coriander
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1 (15-ounce) can white beans
- 2 ears corn, or 2 cups frozen cut corn kernels
- salt and pepper
- limes, chopped red onion, cilantro leaves, shredded jack or cheddar cheese, avocado cubes

In a large saucepan, heat oil over moderate heat. Add chicken and cook, stirring often, until just beginning to brown. Remove from pan and set aside.

Add onion and garlic to the pan and saute until soft. Stir in broth, tomatillos, tomatoes, chiles, oregano, coriander, and cumin. Bring to a boil and simmer for 10 minutes.

Cut kernels from cob; add chicken to pan along with beans and corn. Return to boil then reduce heat and simmer for five minutes or until just heated through. Season to taste with salt and pepper.

Serve in bowls and pass lime wedges, onion, cilantro, sour cream, cheese, and avocado at table to be added as desired.

Serves 6.

NOTE: Tomatillos are available in the Latin section of many supermarkets. If not, substitute an additional 16-ounce can of diced tomatoes.

An Actress of Substance

By Amy Boothe Green

Photography by Greg Gorman

HRISTINE LAHTI LOVES A CHALLENGE. So when a script entitled The Four Diamonds landed on her desk, the award-winning actress was intrigued not only by the story but also by the rare opportunity to play two roles: a stoic cancer specialist and an evil sorceress. The latter character, in particular, cast a spell over the actress.

"I liked the idea of the parallel stories," Lahti says, "of the real life story of the boy struggling with cancer and the medieval fantasy that he wrote. And I loved the idea of playing both parts, the doctor and the Most Evil Sorceress Raptenahad. That was a real challenge—especially Raptenahad."

The Four Diamonds, a new Disney Channel Premiere Film that debuts on August 12, is based on the true story of young Chris Millard (played by Thomas Guiry). While battling cancer, Millard escaped into his imagination by writing The Four Diamonds. In the tale, he cast members of his family in various roles, including himself as the "forgotten" Knight of Arthur's Round Table, and his doctor, Dr. Burke, as Raptenahad, the evil sorceress.

Taken prisoner by Raptenahad, Sir Millard must win his freedom by carrying out a quest demanded by the sorceress: he must obtain for her the four diamonds of courage, wisdom, honesty, and strength.

Like all of Lahti's stage and film personae, Dr. Burke and Raptenahad were rounded out with fictional profiles created by the actress. "I do it for all my characters," Lahti says. "I have to find out what their needs are and make them my own."

Lahti says developing Raptenahad required extra thought and effort: "I approached her not as a cartoon-like witch but as a real woman. I tried to give her real needs and fears. I approached the dialogue as if it were Shakespearean dialogue in iambic pentameter. In fact, a lot of it is in iambic pentameter."

Having seen The Four Diamonds, Lahti says, "I was so moved by it. And I think children really should be prepared for what it's about. It deals with a difficult subject—a child struggling with and finally dying from cancer. But what an amazing struggle—and what an incredible achievement that Chris Millard imagined this story and wrote this book while fighting for his life. It provides so much inspiration for people."

Lahti, a critically-acclaimed stage and screen actress, has earned numerous awards for her roles on stage and in films, from 1984's Swing Shift (she played Goldie Hawn's best friend) to Running on Empty (1988). And Lahti has enjoyed her share of prize-winning work on television as well, with cable's Crazy from the Heart (1991) and Amerika (1987).

> "Cable offers women better and more challenging roles"

Lahti, who selects films based on substance rather than box-office draw, admits that cable television has provided many of her best and most challenging roles: "In features, I'm offered more supporting parts—they're sort of generic. Cable offers women better and more challenging roles."

The tall, slender actress grew up in suburban Detroit. One of six children, she was an emotional child; her parents nicknamed her Sarah Bernhardt.

In the early '70s, Lahti was a self-described hippie ladened with feminine angst. She was bewildered by her mother giving up a career as a nurse to raise her family—and by her father, a surgeon who preferred a perfect housewife to a feminist, which his own mother had been.

"My father's mother was a before-her-time feminist—she had a radio show for all the Finns in the Upper Peninsula."

Lahti, which in Finnish means 'bay of water,' channeled some of her political energy into acting, studying at the University of Michigan and Florida State University. Equipped with a master's degree, she plunged into the New York acting scene, studying with Uta Hagen. Ironically, her life and career changed when she played a stereotypical woman in a Joy dishwashing liquid–"Hey, I can see myself!" –commercial. That allowed her to move out of an Upper West Side dive and continue doing Off-Off Broadway plays.

Then in 1979, Lahti won a Theatre World Award for her performance with Chris Sarandon in David Mamet's The Woods. Offers began to roll in, among them, her first feature film role in ...And Justice For All with Al Pacino.

In 1983, Lahti married television director Tommy Schlamme. A year later, she received her first Oscar nomination for her supporting role in Swing Shift. In 1987, Lahti starred in Bill Forsyth's now classic Housekeeping, and she received a Los Angeles Film Critics' Award in 1988 for her work in Sidney Lumet's Running on Empty.

Lahti and Schlamme worked together on cable's Crazy from the Heart in 1991—and Lahti collected a CableACE Award for Best Actress. She says about working with her husband, "I tease him about this, but I think it's true: He listens better as a director than he does as a husband."

The couple have three children, Wilson, 7, and twins Emma and Joe, 2. Lahti admits that since having a family she is less obsessive about her career.

"I'm not as ambitious. It's put my career into a perspective that's much healthier."

She may be more relaxed about her career, but Lahti remains busy. She recently directed and starred in a short film for cable called Lieberman in Love. She says of her directorial debut, "I realized that a director has no life. I wouldn't want to direct a feature until my kids are older."

Reflecting on her career, Lahti says, "I feel fortunate. I've been able to play some great parts and yes, I would like there to be more opportunities, but I can create them, too. I keep being challenged as an actor. I keep growing—that's important."

HOLLYWOOD lives

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN a 17-year-old graduates from high school early, leaves his family and hometown behind in the midwest, and sets his sights on an acting career? Can an aspiring model overcome certain limitations—"I told him I don't do commercials"—to land a contract with a prestigious modeling agency? Will four garage rockers form the ultimate alternative band? What happens to a singer as her career rockets off the launching pad and into the stratosphere?

The answers to those questions form the stories of Hollywood Lives, a new reality-based series from The Disney Channel that premieres August 3 at 7:30 p.m. (6:30 Central). Stretching over 10 episodes, Hollywood Lives follows the stories of 12 hopefuls as they attempt to launch careers in the fields of acting, modeling, comedy, and music.

"With Hollywood Lives we wanted to create a realistic but positive portrait of young people as they attempted to pursue careers in the performing arts," explains director Mark Israel. "It's a positive portrait because we cast kids who had a real passion—we had to believe in their talent. And it's a realistic portrait because, frankly, not all of these kids will succeed. And for some, the very definition of their success will change with their experience."

One of the things that neither Israel nor his partner, producer Wili Baronet, guessed was that one of their subjects would burst into fame—Brandy, the young singer who in the past year has released a CD that went double-platinum, opened on tour for Boyz II Men, and been introduced by her idol Whitney Houston at the Kid's Choice Awards.

"We interviewed over 3,000 kids for Hollywood Lives," explains Baronet. "We literally saw Brandy on the last day of final interviews. That night was the release party for her CD." Israel adds, "It was an amazing piece of fortune—we found Brandy before anything had happened."

While Brandy's story is one of startling success—"As a producer you never know when something like this is going to happen," Baronet says—Hollywood Lives is above all a tapestry of twelve individual stories, with twelve individual endings.

"One really interesting story is Bianca Lawson's, who had a role on Saved by the Bell," Israel says. "We caught Bianca at midpoint in her career, when she was choosing between a TV career and a normal teenage life. Her decision made a moving story."

"That's Hollywood Lives," adds Baronet. "It's positive but it's honest and realistic—you won't find false notions of glamour or glory in these stories."

At 4½ She's Reading 3rd Grade Books

A child prodigy? Not at all! Your child, too can be reading one, two or three years beyond present age level...even if a "poor" reader now

Prove it to yourself...with this 10 day free trial!

Reading is fun for Sarah-as it should be for every child. At age four-and-a-half she's already choosing her own books at the San Diego, Cal. library.

She reads books many third graders find "hard going." Yet she won't enter first grade for another year.

Sarah is typical of thousands of children who learned to read with "Listen and Learn with Phonics"-a reading kit that actually makes reading fun.

"Listen and Learn with Phonics" was developed by a reading expert. It has been endorsed, after extensive testing, by teachers, schools, and educators.

This practical (and inexpensive) home-learning kit fascinates eager young minds from three to ten. The child hears the letters or sounds on a cassette, sees them in a book and then repeats them. This makes an absorbing game of better reading—with amazing results.

For Example: Slow or average readers show sudden-often spectacular-improvement in reading and spelling. Older children often advance their reading skills several years beyond their age level. Young "pre-schoolers" actually teach themselves to read by this simple but startlingly effective method.

Special Parent's Guide

A 32-page Parents' Guide is included. However, you don't need special teaching skills to use this program. Nor do you need any special knowledge of phonics.

In fact, your child needs no special supervision on your part. This set is so simple, so fascinating, children can learn "on their own" without help.

10-Day Free Trial With Money-Back Guarantee!

Results are so dramatic, the publishers will make the complete kit available to your child with an equally dramatic FREE trial and guarantee.

Under the terms of this unusual offer you can test the kit for ten days. Unless you are pleased and satisfied in every way unless you see immediate results with your child, just return the set for a full refund of any money paid. Fill out and mail the coupon below today. If you wish to charge the kit to your credit card just check the coupon. There's no obligation, and six teaching games are included free—yours to keep whether you return the program or not. Career Publishing, Dept. 600-085, Mundelein, Illinois 60060.

What Others Say

I am tremendously pleased. My 5-year old is reading very well and I plan to begin with my 4-year-old. I am so glad I invested in this set. — Judy, I. Gay, Stow,Oh

Last year I taught grades 1-4. I had a 6-year-old boy who came to 1st grade reading 6th-grade words. His father had taught him at home using your set. The father donated the set to our school. I was thrilled because some of the children need a lot of extra help with reading and phonics.—Janet Griffin, Triangle School, Apex, NC

What a happy Grandma I am! Since I ordered a Phonics set and had it mailed to my granddaughter Kim, and her 6-year old sister, they are both making A's in school.—Mrs. Clarence Sparks, Clearwater, FL

Four years ago, I ordered your Phonics set for my 2 children, then ages 4 and 5. They are now top readers and spellers in their class.—Mrs. Nancy Cook, Santa Paula, Ca.

Your company has the best teaching method I have found. Thank you for offering such quality educational materials.— Mrs. Joseph Vanderbush, Green Bay, Wisc.

Brian Wilson Is America's Mozart

By Mr. Bonzai

A critically acclaimed film paints a portrait of the legendary Brian Wilson, the visionary member of The Beach Boys who may just be "the most innovative musician in the history of rock and roll."

From the spellbinding "In My Room" to the rockin' "Do It Again," the music of The Beach Boys forms an American mythology, a fabled, endless summer enjoyed around the world. The gifted hero of that story is Brian Wilson, perhaps the most misunderstood figure in modern music. Sometimes hailed as a genius, sometimes dismissed as a lost soul, the real Brian Wilson has been buried in tabloid hype and secondhand gossip for 20 years. We love the music, but the figure of Wilson himself is almost too much to imagine.

With the world premiere of Brian Wilson...I Just Wasn't Made for These Times, we get to the heart of the matter: music that is profound and timeless; music that underscores a portrait of the artist that makes you stop and wonder. This is much more than a rockumentary—it's a real life musical, a celebration of song.

The director of this acclaimed film is Don Was, bass player and today's hottest record producer. Was' work with such true musicians as Bonnie Raitt, The Rolling Stones, and Willie Nelson exemplifies the finest music being made today, music that possesses a rare depth of feeling. So why did a successful producer shift careers to direct a film about Brian Wilson, an artist whom many believe was lost long ago?

"Brian Wilson is probably the most innovative musician in the history of rock and roll," Don Was says. "The single incident that set me on the path to making this movie was a gig that the two of us played, a benefit for Pediatric AIDS. Brian did a couple of Beach Boys songs and then went into "Love And Mercy." He was playing piano, I was playing bass, and he went into that song and cut to the essence and truth of the lyric. I felt that if people could see that, it would be worth more than a hundred books you could write about him."

Brian Wilson and his brothers Carl and Dennis, along with cousin Mike Love and friend Al Jardine, grew up in a middle class '50s neighborhood of Los Angeles. In I Just Wasn't Made for These Times, Brian recalls playing a Four Freshmen album in a record store demo booth and says that "something magic happened." He also reveals that he turned to music as his only friend. Alone with his piano, Brian would unravel the songs of The Four Freshmen note by note, teaching himself arranging and paving the way for a reconstruction that masters still marvel at.

Music professor Daniel Harrison offers insights into the nature of The Beach Boys, who produced a new blend of harmonies combined with Chuck Berry feeling. "Add some car and surf lyrics and you have this Beach Boys invention. We look back and see it as a fad, but somebody had to have the vision."

The story goes that the Wilson parents left on a short vacation and the teenagers spent their food money to rent musical instruments. The result was a song called "Surfin'," leading to their first performance as The Beach Boys in 1961. Father Murry Wilson took a strong hand in shaping the band, and their debut album, Surfin' Safari, was released in 1962. The following year, "Surfin' USA," "Surfer Girl," and "Be True To Your School" hit the Top Ten. The year 1964 brought "Fun, Fun, Fun" and the #1 "I Get Around." "Help Me Rhonda" went to the top in 1965, and in 1966 they topped the charts again with perhaps their most revolutionary song of all, "Good Vibrations." According to Professor Harrison, with his mosaic recording technique Brian Wilson had "a new sense of form for rock music."

THE STORY GOES that when the Wilson parents left on a short vacation, the teenagers spent their food money to rent musical instruments. The result was a song called "Surfin'," leading to their first performance as The Beach Boys in 1961.

I Just Wasn't Made For These Times is shot in soft tones of black & white interspersed with archival footage of the Boys at various stages of glory through the years. Friends and family offer a kaleidoscope of reflections and images. Of Brian Wilson, Linda Ronstadt says, "I don't think there's anyone his equal in pop music." Van Dyke Parks, a collaborator from the '60s who is working once again with Brian, reflects on Brian's absentee years that, sometimes, "You go places that you don't want to go."

You discover the dark side of the moon." Danny Hutton, of Three Dog Night, describes the young Brian as "so innocent and...so truthful that he would frighten people." Former wife Marilyn admits he was a "pretty far out guy to be married to."

It's also seen how The Beach Boys surpassed the popularity of The Beatles on their own English turf, and how the visionary Brian Wilson played no small part in the legacy of "Sgt. Pepper."

And we learn about the discord that would temporarily disrupt the momentum of The Beach Boys. A complex collision of factors, mixed with an audience that could not keep up with an always-evolving Brian Wilson, led to a sad state of affairs. It's well known that Brian retired to his bedroom for a few years, but it's especially interesting to find that his father Murry used to do the same.

Brian Wilson opens his heart and describes the demons that have haunted him. But in new sessions, filmed in the studio in 1994, we see the artist once again in fighting shape,and joined by daughters Carnie and Wendy. It's thrilling to hear him sing "sun-tanned bodies and rays of sunshine / the California girls and a beautiful coastline..."

As Brian Wilson biographer David Leaf told me, "Brian's our Mozart—and it's so great to see that come to the screen."

Editor at Large for Mix magazine, Mr Bonzai has bemused the world of music since first sharing fish and chips with John Lennon and the boys at Abbey Road.

WORLD TELEVISION PREMIERE

BRIAN BONSALL HAS A "BLANK CHECK"

BRIAN BONSALL HAS APPEARED opposite Patrick Swayze and portrayed the son—in numerous movies of the week—of Linda Hamilton and Jane Seymour. He's had parts on Family Ties and Star Trek: The Next Generation. But in the raucous Disney comedy Blank Check, Brian Bonsall had his first shot at being a leading man, playing brash Preston Waters, an 11-year-old who makes a quick killing by cashing a blank check signed by a dimwitted criminal (played by Miguel Ferrer). "Preston starts out as kind of a nerd," Bonsall laughs in acknowledgement. "But then he gets that blank check and becomes the coolest kid around, and everybody else is jealous. In the end, he finds out he's really an okay person and he does know how to make friends."

THE AMERICAN LEGACY

THE CENTURY THAT MADE AMERICA GREAT

IMAGINE AN INDIVIDUAL BORN in the first year of the 20th Century and surviving into this, its final decade. What a brave new world that person witnessed—from the Wright Brothers' first flight at Kitty Hawk to men landing on the moon. And the other technological marvels: radio followed by motion pictures (later, pictures that talked!) and then by television. The horse and buggy days of one's youth gave way to a world of automobiles and airplanes. And think of those crucial moments in history, as our backwoods republic stepped forward to strut its hour on the world stage, intervening decisively in two world wars and becoming a beacon of freedom for the entire planet. No wonder historians describe the 20th Century as The American Century. Now, Charles Osgood is your host for The Century That Made America Great, a four-part series that draws upon the archives of CBS News to paint a compelling portrait of America over the past 95 years: her history, her people—and her seemingly endless appetite for cultural and technological change. The Century That Made America Great affords us a stirring look at America's recent past on the very eve of the 21st Century.

WORLD PREMIERE

40 YEARS AFTER: THE MYTHIC COOL OF JAMES DEAN

METEORS ARE NOT NEEDED LESS THAN MOUNTAINS," observed the poet Robinson Jeffers. James Byron Dean was such a meteor: In little over a year, his star blazed across the heavens. Appearing in only three films, Dean defined a new style of performance while embodying everything from teenage angst to hipster cool. The films—Rebel Without a Cause, Giant, East of Eden—confirmed James Dean as a major star. But with his death on a dusty California highway at age 24—amid the ruin of his Porsche Speedster—Dean became something more. First he was legend; later he was transfigured into myth. A whole generation exists that may never have seen a James Dean film, but his image remains permanently etched on the American psyche. He has become pure image—cool, enigmatic, ironic. Now, on the 40th anniversary of his death, The Disney Channel is proud to present the world premiere of James Dean, a special that celebrates the man, the actor, the myth. Following the special, we'll present Rebel Without a Cause, the film that launched Dean on his short but brilliant career. It's a film that features one of the most starcrossed casts in the history of Hollywood: James Dean, Natalie Wood, and Sal Mineo.

DISNEY'S YOUNG MUSICIANS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

THIS PAST JULY, THE CANYONS OF THE SANTA MONICA MOUNTAINS were filled with the sweet strains of music as 75 talented young performers between the ages of eight and 12 gathered at Mount St. Mary's College. There the hopefuls mingled with stars of the music world in a series of seminars and master classes—and, of course, they attended rehearsals for the fourth annual performance of Disney's Young Musicians Symphony Orchestra concert, a world premiere on The Disney Channel on August 24. Hosting the concert this year is Paula Zahn—herself a cellist. In fact, Zahn took part in the music camp with the 75 young players. The concert itself features a diverse selection of music—and it also features internationally acclaimed classical guitarist Christopher Parkening. Plus a surprise guest will lift his baton at the podium to conduct the Young Musicians Symphony Orchestra in their very first number of the night.

WHITE FANG 2: A VISION OF NATIVE AMERICAN LIFE

WHEN KEN OLIN CHOSE TO MAKE HIS FEATURE debut as a director, the former star of thirtysomething chose White Fang 2: Myth of the White Wolf. This sequel to the succesful Disney family adventure White Fang introduces a new character, Henry Casey (Scott Bairstow), who, along with White Fang, encounters a peaceful tribe of Native Americans known as the Haida. That encounter—and an age-old prophecy—leads White Fang into a new adventure that brings the legend of the White Wolf to life. "This is the first motion picture to portray Haida Indians," says Olin of White Fang 2. "Although there are aspects of life such as their appreciation of nature and their environment that are a common attribute of other Native Americans, the Haida, because they are not a nomadic tribe, have a high content of distinctive art and craftmanship in their culture." Great care was taken to capture the film's portrait of the Haida people—before filming began a Haida leader performed a prayer and sang a blessing song. "One of the things that made this movie so special," Olin says, "is the way in which we have tried to illuminate these people and the nature and mythology of the wolf. Hopefully the story proves unique and distinctive."

"I eat 'em 'cause they're fun."

Know why Kraft® Singles are fun to eat? 'Cause you can bend 'em, break 'em, fold 'em, even wear 'em. And every 3/4-ounce Kraft Single is made from 5 oz. of milk. And that makes a creamy, smooth taste kids also love…to eat.

Milk makes KRAFT Singles taste great.
